Chromium is an essential mineral that has a beneficial role in helping regulate insulin—a hormone that controls blood sugar and helps deliver glucose into cells where it is used for energy in the body. It has also been shown to enhance protein, carbohydrate, and lipid metabolism.[†]

People living with type 2 diabetes have lower levels of chromium in the body, which suggests that chromium supplementation may help balance blood sugar levels.[†]

Chromacin® (as Polynicotinate Glutathione Complex)

- Glucose tolerance factor chromium, or chromium GTF, is an essential trace mineral
- By binding insulin to cell membrane receptor sites, it enables insulin to work in a quicker and more efficient way[†]
- Has the potential to lower glucose levels, as well as lower cholesterol[†]
- Works with insulin produced by the pancreas to metabolize carbohydrates[†]
- GTF Chromium is more absorbable and bioavailable than other forms of chromium, and can be used to combat a chromium deficiency which, while rare, can cause health concerns[†]
